14) It is re. The nature of a permanent advance to meet items of expenditure to recoup it on bills. The P. Pr works under the instructions of Three Dt. Magistrates. Probably it would be more convenient to have the Dt Sessions Judge as the countersigning agency of the bills if one is necessary & then apportion the bills to the Depts with which the Cases are concerned. A certain portion of the expenditure may be contingent expenditure connected with his office. Some workable method has to be suggested.

He will incur expenditure from out of this amount in the first instance, and recoup it by sending out bills to the respective Departments to which the cases relate. As he want this Permanent Advance only on this account, the question of his office contingent expenditure or an annual grant therefor does not arise.
